It's a great time to visit a unique garden, and in this workshop participants will visit the garden Richard has nurtured since 1982 and learn how to naturalize plants and build diverse, resilient and interconnected plant communities. Social distancing and masks are required. Vaccinated attendees welcome.

Richard Sidy is president of Gardens for Humanity and a founding member of the Sustainability Alliance. A teacher for over 35 years, Richard advocates for sustainability education, food security and environmental education.

This workshop is the 4th in KSB's 2021 Native Plant Workshop Series and is at the gardener's home with limited attendance, so early registration is highly encouraged.
